Founder & Spiritual Director

Rev. Nancy Nose is an Interfaith Minister and a Minister of Religious Science. She holds a Master's in Consciousness Studies from the Holmes Institute, a BA in Communications and Performing Arts from the University of Colorado, and is a Certified Svaroopa™ Yoga Introductory Teacher (CSYIT). Nancy has led strategic marketing and communications programs and companies across the globe for over 20 years using spiritual principles in brand management and creative storytelling.

The joy of studying and celebrating the many faces of God has been the primary focus of her life since childhood when, at age six, she politely informed a priest she did not need a middle man to talk to God. She has since explored the many religious and faith traditions of the world, embracing both the commonalities as well as the elements of distinction.

Her motto is “all life is inherently good to the last drop”. She is passionate about nature in its many forms, and considers the outdoors her favorite place of worship. As an accomplished musician and writer, she is a strong advocate for expressing the Spirit of God in the arts. Her purpose is to foster the love and understanding of all life, for it is when we live in kinship with all life – celebrating the diversity of humankind as well as nature and its animals, that we know peace and prosperity in our own lives and in the world.
